ON THIS DAY

April 14, 1907: The third of four destructive, major fires to burn downtown Alpine before the creation of a voluntary fire department took place, leaving "the entire block burned [...] with heavy losses." No real action was taken to aid in fire protection until Alpine's first fire station was constructed in 1923. Read more Alpine history in Clifford B. Casey's Alpine, Texas, Then and Now and find more Alpine and regional history in the Digital Collections of the Archives of the Big Bend.
